Plenary Address:

What Does the Future Hold for Local Media?

Richard A. Boehne, President/C.E.O., E.W. Scripps Company, Cincinnati

Media's Economic Crisis: How To Make News Coverage More Effective in a Tight Economy (A)

How does the current economy affect your journalistic decisions? Panelists will discuss difficult decisions, lawsuit alternatives, and how to pursue public records and hard-hitting news stories on a lean legal budget.

Moderator: Brett Thurman, Esq., general counsel, Cox Ohio Media, Dayton
Panelists: Richard A. Boehne, C.E.O., E.W. Scripps Co., Cincinnati
Ed Esposito, V.P. of Information Media, Rubber City Radio Group, Akron
David Marburger, Esq., Baker & Hostetler LLP, Cleveland

Sexting (B)

Texting gone wild in our digital age has raised difficult media law and policy concerns. Join in the discussion of the constitutional, criminal, and personal issues revolving around the "sexting" phenomenon.

Moderator: Kurt R. Hunt, Esq., Dinsmore & Shohl LLP, Cincinnati
Panelists: Rachel A. Hutzler, Esq., Warren Co. Prosecutor's Office, Lebanon
Cynthia Logan, parent, Cincinnati
Lou Sirkin, Esq., Sirkin Pinales & Schwartz, Cincinnati

Justice 4 Sale? Recusal and Fallout from the Caperton Case (C)

The U. S. Supreme Court decision in Caperton et al. v. A.T. Massey Coal Co., Inc., et al., creates a "serious risk of actual bias" standard for determining when judges should recuse themselves from participating in certain cases involving campaign contributions. Join a distinguished panel to discuss the ramifications of Caperton on judicial recusal and the effects of money raised and spent in judicial campaigns.

Moderator: William K. Weisenberg, Esq., assistant executive director for public affairs, Ohio State Bar Association, Columbus
Panelists: Herbert R. Brown, Esq., former justice, Supreme Court of Ohio
James Nash, reporter, The Dispatch, Columbus
Prof. Bradley A. Smith, Capital University School of Law, Columbus

Bench-Bar-Media Forum: The More We Get Together, the Happier We'll Be (D)

Participate in a discussion of how Dayton's Bench-Bar-Media Forum encourages better communication among Miami Valley individuals who work with the law, the courts and the media. Learn how they get to know each other as human beings while sharing concerns about issues affecting these sometimes oppositional professions.

Moderator: Jeffrey Froelich, judge, 2nd Dist., Ohio Court of Appeals, Dayton
Panelists: Brennan Donnellan, former news director, WLWT, Cincinnati
Travis Gettys, Internet reporter, WLWT, Cincinnati
Jill Meyer, Esq., Frost Brown Todd LLC, Cincinnati
Walter H. Rice, judge, Southern District Ohio, U.S. Dist. Court, Dayton

Public Records Law for Journalists/Students: Seeking To Simplify the Inscrutable (E)

Through the review of current and past statutes and case law, the panel will seek to identify fundamental concepts in public records law and their development over time.

Moderator: William F. Kolis, Esq., Wickens Herzer Panza Cook & Batista Co, Avon
Panelists: Jeffery W. Clark, Esq., principal asst. attorney general, Ohio Attorney General's Office, Columbus
Emily Grannis, student, Post reporter, Ohio University, Athens
Mark Weaver, Esq., Isaac Brant Ledman & Teetor LLP, Columbus

Libel/Privacy Update (F)

Learn what's cooking in privacy and libel law. Topics: public vs. private-figure plaintiffs; opinion speech protection in Ohio; libel by implication; publication of private facts; misappropriation and publicity rights; intrusion and interceptions.

Moderator: Richard M. Goehler, Esq., Frost Brown Todd LLC, Cincinnati
Panelists: Nadia Bashir, Esq., reporter, WFFT, Ft. Wayne, Indiana
David Marburger, Esq., Baker Hostetler LLP, Cleveland
Kenneth Zirm, Esq., Ulmer & Berne LLP, Cleveland

Legal Issues in the Digital Age (G)

Technology is dramatically changing the way the media interacts with the public. This panel discussion will cover the latest technology being used, war stories from the editor's desk and the legal pitfalls associated with the use of these tools.

Moderator: Kevin Shook, Esq., Frost Brown Todd LLC, Columbus
Panelists: Debra Jasper, director, The Kiplinger Program in Public Affairs Journalism, The Ohio State University
Gary Kiefer, managing editor of new media, The Dispatch, Columbus
Brett Thurman, Esq., general counsel, Cox Ohio Media, Dayton

Shield Law Update (H)

Why this year may be the best chance ever to pass a federal shield law, and why reporters at every level should care. Hear the latest stories involving reporters and their "privilege."

Moderator: Hagit Limor, investigative reporter, WCPO-TV, Cincinnati
Panelists: Monica Dias, Esq., Frost Brown Todd LLC, Cincinnati
Herschel Fink, Esq., Honigman Miller Schwartz and Cohn LLP, Detroit
Kevin Riley, editor, Dayton Daily News
Richard Zuckerman, Esq., Honigman Miller Schwartz and Cohn LLP, Detroit

From Newspaper Theft to Twitter: The Student Press and the Law (I)

High school and college journalists and their advisers find that while some legal issues remain constant (censorship, roadblocks to public records), others (using social networking sites in the newsroom, online publishing) present new questions and challenges. This panel of educators and student journalists will explore where things stand for the student press and where they are heading.

Moderator: Mark Goodman, professor, Kent State University School of Journalism & Mass Communication
Panelists: Melinda Rhodes, professor and student newspaper faculty advisor, Ohio Wesleyan University
David Strukel, lecturer, Communication Studies, University of Toledo
Jacquelyn Valley, student editor, Daily Kent Stater, Kent State University
